Biography

During his 15-years as Chief Financial Officer, Clint successfully led over $2 billion in financing and corporate transactions, while also playing a key role in major business and organizational transformations. Through this journey, Clint came to understand that while technical excellence and execution are important, personal satisfaction and truly superior business results were only accessible by practicing conscious leadership. Coaching played an instrumental role in developing and refining Clint's leadership philosophy and practice.

Clint now coaches individuals looking to bring new levels of courageous authenticity to their leadership, challenging leaders and their organizations to build cultures that foster trust, teamwork, focus, and innovation. Drawing on his own experience as a leader, and with an understanding of the challenges busy executives face, Clint inspires his clients to live and lead deliberately: leading their lives and organizations with purpose, vision, and courage. Clint loves to coach technical professionals looking to evolve from technical or task excellence to true leadership, building relationships, teams, and culture. Clint also coaches individuals in the areas of change, career transition, and personal transformation.

Clint holds a Bachelor of Commerce degree from the Haskayne School of Business at the University of Calgary, is a Chartered Professional Accountant (CPA), and a Certified Executive Coach (Royal Roads University). Clint is certified in the Leadership Circle 360-degree Profile and the Leadership Circle Culture Survey.

Committed to life-long learning, Clint currently serves as the Treasurer of the Calgary Chapter of the International Coach Federation (ICF).
