Biography

As an accomplished certified executive coach, communications expert, and team facilitator, Kathleen brings a wealth of corporate and business experience to her practice. She understands the complexity of working within large, diverse organizations and helps her clients navigate the challenges of working in fast-paced, demanding work environments.

Kathleen uses her background in strategic communications and psychology to support clients in their career, team, and leadership development. Her easy-going nature allows her to collaborate with clients in a positive, energetic and dynamic way. Her goal is to become your partner in delivering the learning programs, coaching, and support your organization needs to be its best.

Using a coach approach, Kathleen facilitates in a way that helps participants personalize the learning so it's meaningful and anchored in deep self-awareness and action—helping to build a stronger, more resilient workplace culture. Through ongoing exploration, planning, and accountability, she supports clients to work hard at their goals and expand their view of what's possible.

Kathleen holds a Graduate Certificate in Executive Coaching from Royal Roads University and is a Professional Certified Coach with the International Coach Federation. In addition, Kathleen has a Bachelor's Degree in Psychology from the University of Lethbridge and a diploma in Public Relations from Grant MacEwan University. As an active member of the Edmonton coaching community, Kathleen has served many roles on the local International Coach Federation chapter board of directors and regularly contributes pro-bono coaching for local community initiatives.
